

The Write Time is offering outstanding individuals the opportunity to join our team as a English and Maths teacher (with the ability and enthusiasm to teach employability) subject. We are looking for an practitioner who can deliver functional skills English and Maths up to level 2 and Employability qualifications.

This is a fantastic role for an outstanding practitioner looking for a challenge to work with NEET young people and adults.

It is The Write Time's belief that people will not achieve their learning potential when both social and emotional needs are not being met. As a result, we work very closely with other parties (local authorities, social services, referring schools, etc.) to provide an educational and social environment in which our students can flourish; emphasising not just statutory duties, but giving equal weight to prevention and early intervention to address social, emotional and behavioural difficulties.

Do you have what it takes to join The Write Time and help shape the future of some of London's most hard to reach people?
